Interns work closely with the Education Coordinator and other Preserve staff to receive in-depth training in:

- Native plant propagation and planting
- Land and trail management
- Nursery and gift shop sales and operations
- Social media, marketing and journalism
- History and ecological importance of native plant communities

Potential field trips to other botanical gardens, native plant nurseries and natural areas are offered to round out interns' understanding of plants and public gardens. Interns attend educational programs at the Preserve and complete an individual research or work project for public presentation.
